A terrible explosion occurred near Rising Fawn, Tenn., on the 20th, which will result in the death of a quarryman named Kilgore and the dangerous wounding of two assistants. They were blasting limes one for the furnace. A fuse failed to light, and, while tampering with it the blast exploded. The drill was almost driven through Kilgore's head, and his arms and face terribly mutilated. The others were badly burned and their arms and hands lacer-

MEMPHIS, TENN., August 22 .- The west-bound passenger train on the Memphis and Little Rock Railroad met with an accident yesterday while crossing a short trestle. A broken rai! cansed two second-class passenger coaches, the baggage and express car to go through the trestle, killing J. B. Sal- when reinforced by mounted by men inger and Harry F. Oldberg, merchants of Cotton Plant, Ark., and John Adair, tormerly foreman of the pile-drivers of the Little Rock road. Jas. White, Stock and Claim Agent of the Memphis & Charleston Railroad, had his leg broken. Several other passengers received injuries, but not of a very serious nature.

Thirty-five prohibitionists assembled in State Convention at Nashville, August 22, and discussed throughout the day the question whether they should organize themselves into a separate party and elect a representative who would favor a constitutional amendment to prohibit the manufacture and sale or intoxicating liquors. A majority were in favor of such a measure, but no action was taken.

A valuable black saddle mare was stolen from John Parrish in Scott County a few nights ago, and a very valuable boy buggy was stolen the same night from June Johnson, of Edge Hill. A band of gypsies camping in that vicinity for several days are suspected.

Perry Cely, a colored man, was executad at Greenville, S. C., on the 17th, for the murder of another colored man named Anderson. The killing occurred last April. The killing occurred last April. The execution was private, the criminal denying that he killed An lerson willfully.

"ROMANCE AND TRAGEDY OF PIONEER LIFE" is a series of dramas in prose. It gathers and relates the exploits of our national heroes. The characters live and act. The material is gathered from the wild, but not extravagant, annals of frontier life. Every scene in the book is a true photograph from Man and Nature. The incidents are real. They are sketched with a dramatic power which can be paralleled in no other book devoted to the romance and tragedy of American adventure. The author has precisely that kind of fervor which is requisits to make alive the very pages whereon his characters are marshaled for our interest. The book conforms emphatically to the prime conditions of narrative: it is interesting conditions of narrative: it is interesting and true. The interest is maintained by the vigor and enthusiasm of the made in the Plateau Gazette, a newspaper treatment; the truth has been elicited by a careful culling and comparison of the various traditions, which are thus of the Peace, on the given a new lease of life.
